Comments:

The reason that Congress quit supporting research by the CDC into firearms related issues is that the CDC failed, repeatedly, to be impartial while claiming to be scientific. The current wording of the resolution with the emphasis on gun violence already betrays your lack of impartiality, since there is no mention of the possibility that firearms prevent crime and/or violence when used lawfully. We don't need another cycle of prejudiced research in order to have Congress not support such bias again. Call for impartial research into firearms related issues, including the positive effects of concealed carry policies enacted in states with a resulting drop in crime (already proven by uncontested studies) and your resolution might be worth supporting.
