DEPARTMENT: Commerce and Consumer Affairs

TITLE: A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO TRANSITIONAL AUTHORITY IN THE MORTGAGE INDUSTRY.

PURPOSE: To implement section 106 of the Economic Growth, Regulatory Relief, and Consumer Protection Act, P.L. 115-174 (section 106), which requires states to provide one-hundred-twenty-day temporary authority to originate loans for: (1) loan originators (LOs) moving from a depository institution to a non-depository institution; and (2) state-licensed loan originators moving interstate (transitional authority).

MEANS: Add a new part to chapter 454F, Hawaii Revised Statutes (HRS).

JUSTIFICATION: Integrating section 106 into chapter 454F, HRS, will minimize uncertainty about the implementation of section 106 for LOs and their new employers. Section 106 takes effect on November 24, 2019, which is also the effective date of this bill.

Impact on the public: LOs will benefit from the job continuity afforded by transitional authority as they change jobs within the profession. Employers will also benefit from the ability of their new LO hires to originate residential mortgage loans without waiting to receive a state license. In addition, a greater number of LOs may move from state to state without the interruption of getting approved for a state license.

LOs who operate under transitional authority with fewer qualifications could disadvantage the public: (1) if they violate state laws due to their unfamiliarity with those laws; and (2) by competing with Hawaii-licensed mortgage loan originators. The Department of Commerce and Consumer Affairs' Division of Financial Institutions will provide information and education about the transitional authority and highlight responsibilities for companies that hire LOs with transitional authority.

Impact on the department and other agencies: Mortgage regulators nationwide will work toward implementing the new transitional authority status in the Nationwide Multistate Licensing System before the effective date of section 106.
